Storie di altri viaggi (Italian Edition) Stefano Mantero

Spesso ho pensato a come avrei potuto raccontare la mia vita di non vedente e ciò che mi ha sempre frenato è il timore di non riuscire a trovare un equilibrio espressivo tra il pietismo e il cinismo.

Ho riflettuto a lungo e alla fine mi è parso che la metafora di un viaggio potesse consentirmi di raccontare con naturalezza e semplicità le mie esperienze.

In un immaginario scompartimento su un treno che corre nella notte, entrano ed escono persone che si raccontano e suscitano in me ricordi e emozioni.

Ecco allora entrare la brasiliana Marta che mi narra la storia di Tigrino e Tigrina, il senegalese che fa da segnalatore acustico del semaforo, il turco Erasmo che offrendomi delle ciambelle al sesamo, mi riporta con la mente al mio viaggio a Istanbul.

In alcune parti del mio itinerario immaginario, solo nello scompartimento, vengo assalito da una moltitudine di ricordi: Pluto il mio bassotto che nelle strade del centro di Genova veniva scambiato dai passanti per il mio cane guida, oppure la mia esperienza sul windsurf dove per qualche momento, solo con il mare e il vento, ho assaporato una sensazione di libertà che raramente ho provato.

Alla fine, tutti i soggetti e gli oggetti evocati nel corso della storia, cadono nel vortice del tempo e rimangono fra di loro, in rapporti di tempo che non sono necessariamente quelli convenzionali.
